MARTIN LUTHER KING, JR., 1929-1968

Martin Luther King, Jr., was born in Atlanta, Georgia, on January 15, 1929, into a family of middle-class Blackamericans. His father, Martin Luther King, Sr., was a Baptist minister; his mother, Alberta Williams King, a schoolteacher. King graduated from Morehouse College in 1948 at the age of nineteen. Three years later he took the Bachelor of Divinity degree at Crozer Theological Seminary in Chester, Pennsylvania, graduating at the head of his class, winning the Pearl Plafkner Award for scholarship, and the J. Lewis Crozer Fellowship as well. He entered the Graduate School of Theology at Boston University in 1951 where studied briefly with Edgar Sheffeld Brightman (until his death) and L. Harold DeWolf. He was awarded the Ph.D. degree in systematic theology in 1955.

While studying at Boston University King met and married Coretta Scoot of Marion, Alabama and became the parents of four children. Dr. King was pastor of the Dexter Avenue Baptist Church in Montgomery, Alabama, from 1954 until he left Montgomery in 1960. While pastor at Dexter Ave. King was elected president of the Montgomery Improvement Association which organized a year-long boycott against segregated public transportation in Montgomery.

In 1957 King organized what later became the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and was elected its president. SCLC, with offices in Atlanta, was the organizational base for Dr. King's civil rights activities after 1960, when he moved to Atlanta to become co-pastor (with his father) of Ebenezer Baptist Church. King was a principal leader of the historic March on Washington in 1963, and was designated Man of the Year for 1963 by Time Magazine. In 1964 he was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize--the youngest Peace Laureate in history.

For a decade Martin Luther King was world-famous as a leader of Blackamericans in their struggle against discrimination and race prejudice. His campaigns were principally in the South, and he was arrested and jailed on numerous occasions. His life was threatened frequently. His home was bombed. His confrontations with the raw violence of the police in Birmingham and Selma, Alabama, directed world-wide attention to the racism that characterizes much social behavior in America and contributed to the developing image of America as an extraordinarlily violent society.

In the spring of 1967, in speeches at the Chicago Coliseum and at Riverside Church in New York, King associated himself with the Vietnam peace movement. His public statements on Vietnam alienated him from other black leaders and resulted in a considerable erosion of his black constituency, who felt that their leadership was being co-opted and that attention was being deflected from the civil rights fight by the peace movement. He was praised and damned in the nation's press for this new venture outside the racial struggle.

In the midst of plans for a "Poor People's March on Washington," Martin Luther King made the second of two trips to Memphis to rally support for the garbage collectors there who were on strike for better wages and improved working conditions. While in Memphis, he was murdered by an assassin firing from ambush as King stood on a balcony of the Lorraine Hotel talking with friends and members of his staff. It was the fourth of April, 1968.

We must remember these words - Love your enemies, Bless them that curse you, pray for them that despitefully use you. If we fail to do this, our protest will end up as a meaningless drama on the stage of history and its memory will be shrouded with the ugly garments of shame. "Let no man pull you so low as to make you hate him." Let the history books say, There lived a great people - a black people who injected new meaning and dignity into the veins of civilization.

WASHINGTON STATE TRIAL LAWYERS ASSOCIATION

The Washington State Trial Lawyers Association in a special brochure issued today charged that the State Medical Association has created a phantom crisis over medical malpractice laws.

Jan Peterson, Seattle, President of the Trial Lawyers (WSTLA), said the doctors are attempting to bulldoze members of the State Legislature into passing priviledged legislation for the benefit of physicians.

"The doctors want to take away the right of a medical victim to collect damages from the physician who hurts or cripples," Peterson said. "The doctors are engaged in a high pressure, well financed lobbying campaign to strip away basic legal rights from their victims."

"Our brochure shows the real problem in medical malpractice is the ineffectiveness of the medical profession in cleaning out incompetent physicians from their ranks."

The Trial Lawyers 15 page brochure entitled "The Time has Come...For the Truth About Medical Malpractice: finds:

 No Medical malpractice insurance "crisis" exists -- ther are many insurance companies offering malpractice coverage at competitive rates.

 There is no flood of malpractice litigation -- the ratio of lawsuits against physicians for medical malpractice has remained at 4% over the past several years even as the number of licensed physicians has increased in Washington State.

 Malpractice litigation is caused by medical malpractice.

 Physicians do not adequately discipline their own members. Not one physician's license was revoked in 1981 even though there had been a 400% increase in referrals to the State Medical Disciplinary Board (MDB) compared to 1976 when the MDB was created by law. One M.D. state license was revoked in 1976.

"We believe," Peterson said, "that the physicians are being pressured by their insurance companies into calling for special, priviledged legislation to protect the companies and the doctors against lawsuits for incompetence.

"We think the legislature and the public will reject the Medical Association's crude efforts to take away the public's basic right to be recompensed for medical incompetence.

The Trial Lawyers' brochure calls for two actions by the Legislature to protect the public against medical negligence, Peterson said.

"There should be an increase in the funding and activity of the Medical Disciplinary Board in order to weed out those who ham instead of help their patients," Peterson said.

"Second, we believe the Legislature should pass an insurance reporting act so that insurance companies will be forced to reveal the truth about insurance premiums."

GOVERNOR SPELLMAN ANNOUNCES HOUSING FINANCE PLAN

Governor John Spellman today announced a state housing finance plan designed to increase building activity, ease unemployment and contribute to general economic development.

The Governor unveiled an Executive Request bill that seeks to establish a State Housing Finance Commission that would provide construction financing without affecting the state's credit, fiscal stability or bonded indebtedness.

Washington is now the only state in the Union without a housing finance commission. Sale of tax-exempt mortgage revenue bonds for single family dwellings would benefit first time homebuyers. Passage of the bill could also benefit low income renters by making money available for multi-family rental units. Under Federal law at least 20% of the multi-family units would be reserved for low income persons.

In order to provide housing financing for low and moderate- income residents of the state; to increase state employment, and to encourage and support economic development efforts, this bill creates a Washington Housing Finance Commission.

The tax-exempt financing that the Commission makes available to qualified households in Washington is made possible by Federal tax exemptions specifically designed for this purpose and is regulated by the Federal government.

Annie Gage, a humorist who will connect you with the laughter within yourself, will be performing Jan. 21 at Tacoma Community College in Building 18, Room 8.

Gage's comedy has delighted audiences in the Pacific Northwest for more than two years. Alternatively, she'll talk about the hardships of living alone. "The four basic food groups become one. Starch"

Gage's humor is a celebration of women in all their varieties--old or wrinkled, or fat, or celibate or gay--all trying with various levels of discomfort or pain to meet society's expectations.

Al Davies BOY'S CLUB.

RODNEY CLARK

The Al Davies Boys Club was packed with fans last Monday night for one of the biggest rivalry contests in years.

The two 9th and 10th grad basketball teams from Al Davies squared off for a tough run and gun battle for the bragging rights at the club. The Playboys, led by Hardin Keys and Glen Scoggins faced the Icers, led by coaches Cornell Young and Ray Edwards.

The game began as a see-saw battle until Robert Swift led the Icers to a 10 point lead, but the Playboys easily came back by scoring 12 unanswered points. The Icers fell behind by 4 points with 38 seconds remaining. The Playboys had everything under control until Jay Smalls came down with key defensive and offensive ability to shut down the Playboys by one point with 6 seconds to go.

The Playboys choked with help from the Icers who were playing excellent defense. Coaches Hardin Keys and Glen Scoggins of the Playboys said "We played a decent game. There was no outstanding player, we had a total team effort and we just fell short." Coach Cornell Young of the Icers said "Our boys played excellent ball throughout the showdown. If I were to single out a most valuable player, it would be Chuch Ware even though Robert Swift finished with 30 points, because Ware was always at the right place at the right time. I'm proud to start the season off with a win."

The 11th and 12th grade Rams lost a heart breaker to East Side Boys Club last week. Coaches Wade Walker and Robert Robinson were proud of the boys even though they lost by one point. With 3 seconds remaining in the game, Chuck Lund went to the free throw line for a pair of free-throw shots. Chuck missed both shots and the Rams lost with style.

Coach Walker said "We lost as a team, we were up by 7 points going into the final minutes and we just choked." The Rams play Monday and Wednesday nights starting at 7:00 at Al Davies Boys Club.

Individual finalists are Kathleen Anderson for many years of multiple volunteer services, Anita Bell for aiding Cambodian refugees; Helmut Braunsteiner for his work with veterans; Ruth Brooke for American Cancer Society work; Grace Dechaux for her work with the elderly; Robert Ehrhardt in helping children with learning problems; Cathy Harrison for crisis counseling to military families; Linda Johnson for organizing a local philanthropic sorority; Delmar Mortensen for his efforts in keeping a senior center operational; Donna Dorian-Nichols for counseling troubled children; Leroy Ritchie for 30 years of Boy Scout work; Donna Saling for her aid to sexually abused children; Dr. Dolores Silas for her NAACP leadership; Margaret Sutherland who founded Tacoma Area Literary Council; and, Gordon Tatum who has taught Red Cross safety courses since 1928.

The five organizations to be honored are Christmas House, Tacoma's department store for the needy; Crisis Clinic Volunteers who answer crisis calls around the clock; Pierce County Friend to Friend for providing companionship to nursing home residents; R.A.I.S.E. (Retirees Active In Student Education); and Tacoma Police Chaplaincy who ride with police to aid victims of injury or violence.

"The quality of volunteerism reflected in the nominations was truly outstanding," said Halvorson. "We wish we could have given credit to every one of them," he concluded. Other panel members were Jane A. Shanaman of Nalley's; James L. Walton, assistant city manager; Brian F. Dammeier, chairman of United Way of Pierce County; and Donald K. The Pierce County area was one of only two communities in the west to undertake the program this year.

GETTING TOGETHER: PARENTS AND PARENT AIDES

This picture appears on a poster circulated by DSHS inviting volunteers to "Become a Parent Aide. Be a Friend." That's how the program works.

"The Parent Aide Program helps prevent child abuse and neglect by working with 'high risk' parents. Parent Aide volunteers offer these parents warmth, friendship and support."

That statement is part of a fact sheet prepared by the Seattle Parent Aide Program which operates out of the Centralized Services Unit in Region 4.

The fact sheet goes on to explain that abusive parents are often socially isolated individuals, many of whom were abused themselves as chidren.

The Parent Aide's goal is to help break down that islocation and help the parent learn to cope more effectively with his/her problems.

"The long-term goal of the relationship is to decrease the likelihood of further abuse, thereby protecting the child and breaking the child abuse cycle."

Volunteers are men or women, age 21 or older, who have enjoyed a parenting or child care experience and are familiar with normal child development. "They commit four to six hours a week for a minimum of one year. They are warm, tolerant, open and patient. They listen rather than give advice."

Parents are referred to the program by DSHS Child Protective Services (CPS) caseworkers, who are responsible for investigating child abuse and neglect. The caseworkers give the parents information about the program, but all parent participation is voluntary.

NOTE: This program, now flourishing in several King County locations, has been attracting widespread interest ever since the story of the Bellevue CSO Parent Aide program appeared in the October 1, 1980, Overview, and was later reprinted nationally. Readers who want copies of the Bellevue story may contact DSHS Public Affairs, (206) 753-2745 (SCAN 234-2745).

MOUNT TAHOMA VS. BELLARMINE A NIGHT OF DISGUST.

Last Monday, Jan. 9th, while flipping through television channels I happened to stumble across a surprising program, a Bellarmine, Mt. Tahoma basketball game. Well after the delightful surprise was finished, I realized something. The game was not what I usually expected from two Narrows League teams.

Mount-Tahoma suffered through with a 58 to74 beating. This defeat was well deserved. Why? This is because Mt. Tahoma played one of the worst games I've ever seen.

This team continually bached up simple, fundamental plays, missing lay-in's free-throws, high-percentage shots, and not to mention very laxed attitudes were better than obvious. On the other hand, Bellarmine played the better side of the evils.

This team displayed togetherness and definite team-like qualities "driving" well, and making lay-ins.

Their fundamental skills were finer tuned, but on too many occasion in the course of the game players "traveled" too often, and the supposed center had the academic playing level of an 8th grader for his target size.

He was so slow that on some plays the camera left him at the opposite end of the court.

To sum things up, this game was not up to my city league standards for the fact that I've seen much better contests from these particular schools in the past.

This, I, especially say to M.T. get your team together!

MARK 8

Jesus Feeds The People Miraculously

IN those days the multitude being very great, and having nothing to eat, Jesus called his disciples unto him, and saith unto them.

I have compassion on the multitude, because they have now been with me three days, and have nothing to eat:

And if I send them away fasting to their own houses, they will faint by the way: for divers of them came from far.

And his disciples answered him, from whence can a man satisfy these men with bread here in the wilderness?

And he asked them, How many loaves have ye? And they said, Seven.

And he commanded the people to sit down on the ground and he took the seven loaves, and gave thanks, and brake, and gave to his disciples to set before them; and they did set them before the people.

And they had a few small fishes: and he blessed, and commanded to set them also before them.

So they did eat, and were filled: and they took up of the broken meat that was left seven baskets.

And they that had eaten were about four thousand: and he sent them away.

And straightway he entered into a ship with his disciples, and came into the parts of Dalmanutha.

And the Pharises came forth, and began to question with him, seeking of him a sign from heaven, tempting him.

And he sighed deeply in his spirit, and saith, Why doth this generation seek after a sign? verily I say unto you, there shall no sign be given unto this generation.

And he left them, and entering into the ship again departed to the other side.

MARTIN LUTHER KING SINGERS.

Seven of the Northwest's finest gospel music singing ensembles will perform during a Gospel Extravaganza at Pacific Lutheran University Sunday, January 23.

The 3:30 p.m. concert in Olson Auditorium is a benefit for the BERG minority scholarship program at PLU.

Sponsored by BANTU, the PLU black students' union, the gospel concert features Tacoma's Martin Luther King Singers, St. John's Baptist Church Chapel Choir and Voices of Victory.

Seattle-based ensembles include the Chanticleers, Rondel and Carmel Harvey, Mt. Zion Mass Choir and The Total Experience.

The latter five groups presented the first Northwest Gospel Extravaganza at the Moore Theatre in Seattle on Valentine's Day last year.

Not quite a decade old, the Martin Luther King Singers from Fort Lewis - Chapel No. 9 have been widely praised at performances throughout the Northwest. The St. John's Chapel Choir is one of several St. John's Baptist, one of the oldest and largest black congregations in Tacoma.

Voices of Victory, a five-member ensemble from Tacoma's Bethlehem Baptist, has recorded their work and has been acclaimed during tours of the entire West Coast.

Like Tacoma's St. John's, Seattle's Mt. Zion Baptist is a large congregation with a long history. The Extravaganza will feature Mt. Zion's combined Inspirational, Santuary and Chapel Choirs.

The Extravaganza is scheduled the week following the birthday of the late civil rights leader Dr. Martin Luther King and precedes an African heritage lecture-film program at PLU Jan. 26 It is also a fitting prelude to PLU's observance of Black Awareness Month in January.

MAJORITY VIEWPOINT

The 48th Legislature may well face more challenges than any other Legislature since statehood.

Briefly, we fact:

--The highest unemployment since the depression,
--state finances in a shambles,
--WPPSS on the brink of collapse, and
--an education system being short-changed by the depressed economy.

It's not difficult to agree on the problems; however, finding solutions will be considerably more difficult. As House Speaker I am urging the Legislature to adopt a methodical one-piece-at-a-time approach to state problems.

In the first few weeks of session you can expect legislation to create an independent redistricting commission, strong ethics legislation to regulate the conduct of elected officials and a supplemental budget to get the state's budget back in balance by the end of the fiscal year. The supplement budget will be difficult to pass but it's absolutely necessary, and I'm hoping we can pass it early in the session so we can concentrate on the state's longer range budget problems.

Foremost on the minds of the Legislature and the people is concern over unemployment. Official statistics show that more than 260,000 people in this state are without jobs. The actual figure may be much higher. Hardest hit has been the wood products industry. Mills are not only shutting down, many of them are actually dismantling and selling their equipment.

The first week of this session the Legislature will participate in a conference along with the Governor and some of the sharpest economic minds in this country, to see just what the state can and should do to ease unemployment.

We will be searching for real answers, not just politically expedient solutions. As an example, nearly every community I visit wants to become a center for high tech industry -- a silicon valley. That isn't going to happen and even if it did, it would not solve our problems.

A $15 an hour wood worker is not going to be content with a $5 an hour job assembling micro-computer equipment.

It is my hope that the economic conference will center on what is possible. How to maximize the employment potential in our existing industries and how to develop a logical and well-planned diversification into new fields.

The public should not be misled. Our problems will not be solved overnight. It will take concerted efforts on the part of business, labor and government to make much headway in reducing unemployment significantly. It will take the work and cooperation of both Democrats and Republicans.

I encourage your participation in the system. Write to your local legislators or call them on the toll-free Legislative Hotline: 1-800-562-6000. Or write to the House Democratic Leadership, HOB 226, Olympia, 98504.

ABOUT YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY

TIMELY APPLICATION IMPORTANT

People in the Tacoma area who plan to apply for Social Security retirement or survivor benefits before they reach 65 should remember to apply no later than the month they want benefits to begin, Bill Ross, Social Security district manager in Tacoma, said recently.

This is because, with few exceptions, a person who wants to receive reduced benefits before 65 cannot receive them for months before the month he or she applies. Retired workers and their wives or husbands can start getting benefits as early as 62 and widows and widowers as early as 60.

A worker and his or her wife or husband can receive benefits only for months in which they are eligible throughout the entire month. This means that unless a person reaches 62 on the first or second day of the month, he or she cannot receive a benefit for that month.

A person who applies after reaching 65 can receive benefits for up to 6 months before the month of application, but not before the month he or she became 65.

It is a good idea to apply 2 or 3 months before a person wants benefits to begin. This give Social Security enough time to process the claim so benefit checks will begin shortly after income from work is reduced.

Before applying, a person should get certain documents and information. This includes the person's Social Security card or a record of the number; Forms W-2 for the past 2 years; or if self-employed, self-employment taxtreturns for the past 2 years and evidence of filing (a cancelled check); evidence of date of birth, preferably a birth certificate or baptismal record recorded before age 5.

More information about Social Security applications and benefits can be obtained at the Tacoma Social Security office, located at 1208 South 10th. Street. The telephone number is 1-800-562-6350.

JOB DISCRIMINATION STRONG
By John E. Jacob

Federal laws against employment discrimination have been on the books for almost twenty years, but while the most blatent forms of discrimination have been eliminated, there is evidence that discrimination remains a major factor in the economic disadvantage of minorities.

That is the only reasonable conclusion one can come to from reading a new report by the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

Entitled "Unemployment and Underemployment Among Blacks, Hispanics, and Women," the report documents the gap between majority males and minorities and the traditional explanations for that gap.

And it finds those explanations, increasingly common these days, to be wanting. The Commission Chairman's cautious conclusion:

"When comparing workers with the same amount of education or who live in the same area or who have the same amount of training or are the same age, minorities and women have far higher levels of unemployment and underemployment. We must strongly suspect that discrimination continues to be a factor. We have been able to find no other explanation for these persistent disparities."

Those disparities have often been dismissed with rationalizations. Some conservative economists have said that black unemployment is so high because blacks have less education, less training, live in places where business is bad, and more.

But the statistical analysis made by Commission disproves those attempts to avert the admission that discrimination still lives.

For example, it found that great disparity in employment between white males and black males with the highest educational levels. And it found that blacks were more often overeducated for the jobs they held than other groups.

That hardly says education isn't important. Nor should it be interpreted to justify anything that discourages blacks from increasing educational achievement levels. It just indicates that advanced degrees are not enough to immunize black workers from the effects of discrimination.

One value of the report is that it not only discusses unemployment, which is an issue familiar to most people, but also other forms of job disadvantage.

Black jobless rates are constantly over double the white rates, but so too are the rates for underemployment through intermittent work or involuntary part-time work. So too are the rates for marginal jobs or for working at below-poverty level wages.

The Commission estimates a third of black males are overeducated for the work they do and a fifth earn wages below what they might expect given their qualifications.

All of this adds up to economic disadvantage that sweeps across all the possible explanations but one -- discrimination. Whenever the Commission compared blacks and whites with similar characteristics, it found wide discrepancies in economic outcomes.

The Commission did not go into how discrimination works its illegal ways, nor the motivations and patterns behind the statistics. That requires a massive study itself.

But what it has done demonstrates the need to take discrimination seriously. It documents the failure of traditional explanations of black-white disparities, and the overriding need to remove discrimination from our lives.

For without strong anti-discriminatory measures, minorities will once again be left out of any economic recovery that occurs, and blacks will remain disadvantaged.

COAST GUARD CADET ADJUSTS TO LIFE OF RIGOR

She makes her point candidly and unequivocally: Being Black doesn't help or hinder success at the Coast Guard Academy.

What helps is diligence, says Daphne Reese, a Black first class cadet. What hinders is indifference.

In June, Reese will be one of two Black women to ever graduate from the ~~a~~academy. Angela - Dennis, a native of Arkansas, will also receive an undergraduate degree.

"I always knew I would make it," she says, smiling, her large brown eyes revealing her joy.

"My family encouraged me. They gave me the support. And the academy's been good to me, too. But what it came down to was me. I was the one who had to make the decision to stick with it. And in all honesty, sometimes it was quite difficult."

Four years ago, the 21-year-old Georgia native had serious doubts about remaining at the academy, in New London, Conn. in the southeastern part of the state.

"The first week was absolutely horrible. I had no idea of what it was like here. It was a whole new lifestyle, she says.

Although Reese has had a more formal, disciplined education than many of the nation's students, her former all-girls Catholic high school didn't even come close to the rigid, tough demands of life at a service academy.

The 5-foot-4 sports enthusiast graduated in the top 40 in a class of more than 300, and it was rare for her to get a grade below a B. But the transition to the severe, unbending military format was frustrating, she recalls.

Born in Columbus, GA. and raised in southeast Washington D.C., Reese and her two brothers attended public schools for a couple of years. Dissatisfied with the quality of area public schools, their parents Nancy and Donald Reese worked hard to pay the high tuition costs to send their children to private schools.

Reese says education has always been a priority in her family. "We just didn't think of bringing home any thing less than an A or B. My father continually talked about the value of a good education. Not just going to schobi, but learning, acquiring good, solid skills," she explains.

THE NATURAL LIKENESS OF JESUS
SERIES #3

It is recorded in the book of the revelation that John saw Jesus.

Revelation: Chapter 1, Verse 13 & 15.

And in the mist of the seven candlesticks one like unto the Son of man, clothed with a garment down to the foot, and girt about the paps with a golden girdle.

And his feet like unto fine brass, as if they burned in a furnace; and his voice as the sound of many waters.

It is hereby recorded that his eyes were as a flame of fire. His hair, white like wool. Representing one of great age, and it is noted that his feet were like fine brass as if they were burnt in a furnace.

Anything that you burn in a furnace or stove, your most likely to come out black or very dark color.

This concludes the Natural Likeness Of Jesus. Next week we will begin Series # 1 on: The Spiritual Likeness Of Jesus.
